

Air Waybill Validation

Enhance the quality of air waybills without manual work

Youredi helps you to validate and enrich all air waybills automatically

Airlines have been using manual processes for validating air waybills to ensure that they are error-free.

We have created an automated solution for validating all air waybills to detect errors and missing information. Once we have identified any mistakes, we will send back the AWB for enrichment to the sender.

How Does Youredi Air Waybill Validation Work?

Some airlines may receive hundreds of thousands of air waybills monthly from freight forwarders, cargo community systems (CCSs), ground handlers, or sales agents. Most of the air waybills could have errors, or they lack specific mandatory information.

Still today, most airlines handle the air waybill validation process manually. This requires a dedicated labor force and long hours before all incoming messages are scanned for errors and missing fields. The manual validation process is also error-prone.

To help you improve the quality of the air waybills and speed up the whole process, we have developed a solution to automate the process by removing manual intervention.

1. Youredi receives the air waybill

We will set up connectivity to ensure that all air waybill messages from all your stakeholders will go through the Youredi validation solution and will be enriched before you'd receive them.

2. The air waybill goes through the validation process

All air waybills will go through Youredi's validation filter to ensure that they are all checked against certain business rules that will ensure that the messages you receive are flawless and include all necessary information.

3. The air waybill is forwarded back for enrichment

In case the air waybill is missing any necessary data or the information provided in them is invalid, Youredi will forward the air waybill back to the sender for enrichment. We repeat the validation and enhancement as long as all the AWBs are valid.

4. Youredi transforms the data format

Some of your partners may use different data formats than the one that your system can understand. Before we would send you the air waybill, we can transform the data format to your preferred format.
